

April 2019 Sightings Report

This April provided a very typical spring-like month, with a bit of snow at the beginning and end, and periods of cool interspersed with spikes of warmth through the month. The more severe storms passed to the south of the region. Temperatures averaged 46.9 °F, 0.6° above normal. Precipitation totaled 2.74", just 0.01" above normal. Snowfall, at 2.2", was 1.7" below normal but kept the trend of all but one year seeing some snowfall since record keeping began in 1884. Lake Ontario remained cool, and persistent winds from the north, especially late in the month, kept leaf-out near the lakeshore delayed and many arrivals seeming a bit late

Again, all the expected waterfowl were recorded, and by later in the month the numbers of lingering birds continued the trend to very low numbers. Peak numbers for most species were also low, as illustrated in the maxima in the Noteworthy Records table. Nothing stood out as an especially good count. This continued for the grebes and, now later in the list, the loons. Highlights included 2 male Eurasian Wigeons and a young male Barrow's Goldeneye.

Sandhill Crane numbers passing the hawk watch were good and also at other expected locations. With relatively high water levels, shorebird numbers were low other than a few counts at the Carncross Road area in the Northern Montezuma Wildlife Management Area (NMWMA). Still, there were some good finds, with American Avocet at Sodus Point, a rare and record early spring Sanderling photographed at Irondequoit Bay outlet, five Willets at Irondequoit Bay outlet and later 6 passing off the Town of Greece, and Ruff (female = reeve) and relatively rare spring American Golden-Plovers at Carncross Road.

The gulls and terns were back to more normal numbers after the big counts of last spring. Little Gull was the only scarcer species reported, with one at Sodus Bay and two passing Hamlin Beach State Park. Peak counts were all modest, and the numbers of winter species lingering were all low. Arriving terns were at typical to slightly later dates relative to recent springs.

The grouping from loons to vultures under the new list order is often lackluster, but this year we start with a regional first Magnificent Frigatebird passing Hamlin Beach on the 27th, seen and photographed by Andy Guthrie and Brian Morse. Continuing, there were many reports of American White Pelican, a record early Least Bittern, Glossy Ibis for a week at Carncross Road, and another passing Black Vulture over Owl Woods. Eleven species were continuing or at typical arrival dates.

At the hawk watch, numbers were pretty good, though a bit slow due to weather in the last week of the month. Over 37,000 is a good total count. Turkey Vultures still outnumbered Broad-winged Hawks for the month. Nearly all species totals for the month and year to date are above last year's totals. There were 11 days with totals over 1,000 birds. Details are presented in the hawk count site online. A lone adult, light morph Swainson's Hawk was the only real rarity reported. The DEC owl surveys on the 9th and 23<sup>d</sup> continued to turn up Short-eared Owls late in the season. Jim Adams again summarized the owl counting at the "Owl Woods" area on Manitou Beach Road. By month's end another 31 Northern Saw-whet Owls had been added, bringing the season's total to 91, just 10 below the previous record for this tally. 18 more Long-eared Owls brought that species' total to 25 for the season. Again, an excellent Northern Flicker movement was noted at several points on the lakeshore at about mid-month.

The Braddock Bay Bird Observatory (BBBO) banding effort was again off to a fairly slow start due to the cool last week of the month, with only 684 new bands. The drop in kinglets and rise in chickadees from 0 to 107 just about accounts for the difference from last year's April total. The Black-capped Chickadee seesaw is just as expected. Many of the late April passerines either just made it in the last few days of the month or slipped into May. Only 4 species of warblers were banded, and only 12 species were reported by month's end. Five passerine species arrived at dates early by the old (1984) summary, but all having been reported earlier yet in the intervening years. The species that often pass in large numbers, such as Blue Jays, American Crows, and American Robins, were not tallied in any really sizable numbers this month, but that will change next month. There were no outstanding counts for especially rare passerine species, Bohemian Waxwing and Evening Grosbeak being the most notable for this month. Once again, Jim Adams supplied detailed commentary of his regular surveys at Oatka Creek Park. His summary for April mirrors the generally feelings from others, but with interesting details for the interested reader.

This month there were about 56,542 eBird records submitted and 5% or so additional records from other sources.

Please send your reports by the 5th of the month to Andrea Patterson, 144 Greystone Lane, #24, Rochester, NY 14618.
